Secretaries approach completion. The great interest which the war will give to that of the interest which the war will give to that of the Secretary of War will be heightened by Mr. Cameron's distinct avowal of his policy of placing arms in the hands of slaves willing to use them for the cause of the Union. He will support this by argument and historical references, and so show that his leading position upon this vital question has been as deliberately as atropoly taken.

s strongly taken. As a foretaste of the administration hereafter of the war department until the close of the re-beliion, the public will learn with interest that Mr. Cameron will appeal to Congress and to the Governors of States authorized to bind the Government, to practice the closest economy, and will strictly require economy and accountability from every subordinate in the war bureaus and the army in the field. Energetic as the war is and will be, it will not be permitted to bank rupt either the Government or the people. Mr. Cameron's report will also probably contain recommendations that will go far to abolish the distinctions between regulars and volunteers. Among these will be the repeal of the regulation which confers rank on the regular officer over the volunteer of the same grade, leaving it to be determined by secicily eaving it to be determined by seciority, accord-leaving it to be determined by seciority, according to date of commission.

Secretary Chase's report will recommend necessarily a large increase of revenue duties. The necessities of the Treasury during the war will require that the tariff be so shaped as to produce the greatest possible amount of income. Large incidental protection to American manufacturers will of course be the consequence. Upon the vital idea of the war it is said that Mr. Chase will fully develope the theory that the slaves in the rebel States should be employed under wages to raise cotton, sugar. employed under wages to raise cotton, sugar, rice and tobacco for Government account. This policy has already been cetablished by Mr. Cameron in regard to the ungathered and ungined Sea Island cotton in Beaufort. The nation will heartily approve its recommendation by Mr. Change to Congress as a wiger disposition. Mr. Chase to Congress as a wiser disposition
